Academic Progress Towards the Undergraduate Degree
Industrial and Systems Engineering Department
University rules found at http://student-rules.tamu.edu/rule12
College policies found at http://engineering.tamu.edu/academics/advisors-procedures/probation

1. Probation – Blocked from Registering
   a. Probation: a student obtaining a semester GPA of less than 2.0, an in-major GPA less than 2.0, or has a cumulative TAMU GPA that is less than 2.0 will be placed on academic probation.
   b. Terms of probation during a regular semester: Students must complete at least 12 hours towards the INEN degree the following regular semester with no grade of D, F, or Q over CBK or ISEN courses and at least a 2.0 GPA for the semester. Students on probation are also strongly encouraged to attend the Success Program administered by the Academic Success Center of Texas A&M (http://successcenter.tamu.edu). (Exceptions to requiring 12 hours for students who are working full time while attending school are possible when the request for an exception is made before the semester starts.)

   If a student fails to satisfy these probationary terms, the student will be blocked from continuing in the department. For students failing these probationary terms but whose semester cumulative TAMU GPA is 2.0 or greater, an appeal can be made at the department level by writing a letter (or email) containing a plan specifying the steps the student will take to insure a successful semester if allowed to continue. For students whose cumulative TAMU GPA is less than 2.0, an appeal at the department level is possible with documented evidence of circumstances beyond the student’s control (e.g., personal or family medical problems) causing the poor academic performance in addition to a plan specifying the steps the student will take to insure a successful semester if allowed to continue.

   Letters of appeal at the department level should be sent to the Director of the ISEN Undergraduate Programs. If email is used, always use your neo.tamu.edu account.

   c. Terms of probation for students during the summer semester: no grade of D, F, or Q over CBK or ISEN courses and at least 2.0 GPA over the summer courses. If a student fails to satisfy these probationary terms, the student will be blocked from continuing in the department.

2. Closest Major
   Students must take courses that are directed towards the INEN degree plan. Students failing to take courses that are directed towards the INEN degree plan will be blocked from continuing in the department and will be advised to change majors.

3. Student Rights
   Students who have been blocked from continued enrollment in the department may appeal that decision to the college by contacting Cathy Sperry at c-sperry@tamu.edu. The college decision may be appealed to the Undergraduate Appeals Panel (http://student-rules.tamu.edu/rule50).
